COMMENTS

10 An uphill struggle

Antonis D. Papagiannidis says that an old new government configuration will lead Greece to a further bailout effort – with Grexit still in the background

50 “No” to a parallel currency

Economist and author Nick Papandreou says when citizens think their country will go bankrupt, they will rid themselves of any local currency – which will promptly depreciate

ECONOMY & BONDS

16 Greek economy haunted by uncertainty and risks

Political uncertainty and the refugee crisis have impacted on a liquidity-starved economy that is expected to slip back into recession this year, weighed down by crippling capital controls and a beleaguered banking sector increasingly laden with a massive pile of bad loans

18 Greece awaits debt relief talks to pave way for market return

Political stability, a good record in programme implementation and a comprehensive debt relief package are necessary for Greece to regain the trust of the international investor community and access debt markets again in the medium-term

INTERVIEW

22 Learning from the German growth model

Business File asked Professor Ansgar Belke, Professor Nikos Christodoulakis and Dr Daniel Gros whether the model for growth adopted in Germany's Ruhr district in the 1970s can be implemented in Northern Greece to help kick-start sustainable growth in the region

FEATURES AND ANALYSIS

BANKING

20 Greek banks await stress tests, prepare for recapitalisation

Liquidity-starved Greek banks are bracing themselves for the results of asset quality reviews and ECB stress tests to determine their future capital needs amid surging NPLs and ongoing capital controls

CO-OPERATIVES

26 Co-operating to beat the recession

Several hundred new Greek co-operatives have sprung up in recent years, partly in response to the crisis, but the existing legal framework needs to be improved

TOURISM
28 Greek shipowners consider relocation amid tax concerns

A growing list of countries are openly courting Greek shipowners looking for alternatives to their home-base as they face an increased tax burden in future

By David Glass

32 Ship finance conundrum

Confidence in a recovery of the shipping markets in 2015 prompted banks lending to Greek shipping to increase their overall exposure in 2014, but ship finance analyst Ted Petropoulos believes shipowners will increasingly rely on non-banking sources of finance, as well as their own resources, to meet the industry's challenges

GREEK SPIRIT
38 Talking culture

Distinguished archaeologist and academic Professor Dimitrios Pandermalis, who is president of the new Acropolis Museum, talks to Business File about the Museum's work, his inspiring career, his views on life and the Greek economic crisis

By Vanessa Alexakis

42 Greece eyes another record with 26 million tourists despite capital controls

A record number of tourists have come to Greece this year despite political uncertainty and capital controls, though revenues per visitor continue to decline and more investment is needed

PORTRAIT
44 Laskaridis legacy

The late Marilena Laskaridou, Vice President of the Aikaterini Laskaridis Foundation, leaves behind a lifetime legacy devoted to promoting the fields of culture, education and Greece's rich maritime heritage
