COMMENTS

8 Stuck in the mud

Antonis D. Papagiannidis says that the deteriorating refugee crisis, along with sputtering negotiations with Greece's creditors, brings forth a new impasse

50 How populism reached the US

Economist and author Nick Papandreou looks at how Donald Trump is seen from Europe and argues that his supporters are predominantly white, working-class men whose American dream has turned into a nightmare

ECONOMY AND BONDS

16 Greek economic recovery hopes on a knife-edge

After a nervous start to the year for the Greek economy, investors, business owners and economists are pointing to a series of uncertainties hanging over the country that could prolong the economic slump

18 2016: A year of pragmatism and adjustment

Bank of Greece Governor Yannis Stournaras told the 83th Annual Meeting of Shareholders that the completion of the review is essential for an exit from the crisis

22 Draghi's stimulus package props up Greek bonds

Greek government bonds were among the main beneficiaries of the European Central Bank's triple stimulus package announced on March 10, but Greek debt instruments also stand to benefit immensely from the conclusion of the ongoing review of the economic programme, though important hurdles have to be overcome

INTERVIEWS

28 Despite its huge potential, Greece lacks confidence

In an exclusive interview, Gianpiero Pazzanese, President and CEO of British American Tobacco Hellas, talks to Business File about the tobacco giant's plans to invest 100 million euros in the Greek market over the next three years, as well as prospects for the Greek economy

FEATURES AND ANALYSIS

BANKING

24 Greek banks reduce reliance on ELA funding, eye the return of deposits

The imposition of capital controls has stopped deposit outflows but inflows have been very limited since last July, despite the recapitalisation of the core Greek banks

INVESTMENTS

26 Hopes for investment rebound in 2016

After an "annus horribilis" in 2015, three big deals with international groups were agreed in the first quarter this year, raising hopes that further inward investment will put Greece on track for a sustained recovery

SHIPPING

32 In the eye of the storm

There was little to cheer about for more than 800 delegates who attended Capital Link's 7th annual Greek Shipping Forum, with over 40 presenters and panelists venting their views on the tough times gripping a global shipping industry plagued by oversupply and low freight rates

By David Glass

34 Union of Greek Shipowners on the offensive

Union of Greek Shipowners president Theodore Veniamis pulled no punches when he told fellow owners gathered for the UGS AGM that Greek shipping is under attack at a time when Greek shipping revenues are nosediving and the European Commission is tightening the screw on the industry's current tax status

By David Glass

36 Posidonia 2016: Magnet for global maritime community

This year's Posidonia 2016 international shipping exhibition is on course to be the biggest ever gathering of shipping people

By David Glass

38 Under siege

Greece's valuable cruise shipping sector is facing the threat of cancellations after the port of Piraeus was swamped by thousands of refugees and migrants held back to avoid further overcrowding in the north of the country after neighbouring countries closed their borders

By David Glass

40 Greek owners continue to rule the waves

Greek shipowners continue to rule the waves in terms of the asset value of their fleet. Greeks control the most valuable, according to the ranking by VesselsValue.com, a leading appraiser of ship values

By David Glass

TOURISM

42 Tourism set for another record year

Greece eyes 27.5 million tourists in 2016, but challenges remain as the refugee crisis lingers on and a successful conclusion of the bailout review is needed if the country's key tourism sector is to achieve another record year

EY ENTREPRENEUR OF THE YEAR

44 Passion for work

George Koutsolioutsos, CEO of Folli Follie Group, Greece's champion jewelry and retail exporter, has won the EY Greek Entrepreneur of the Year award for 2015
